Prepared for Algonquin aero modellers club 6 September 2017

Field condition was favourable for flying the complete season. Although it was not agreed-upon by the executive nor at the first meeting the field was cut nine times during the season with a final cut to be conducted before the end of September.

The arduous task of weeding the field was replaced by cutting the weeds as low as possible the result of this was a runway surface that was made up of 70% short weeds and grass and conducive too short take off and landings.

It is hope that this practice will result in a grass runway surface, as the grass should take over in the years to come.

Turkeys continue to be a problem as they dig for grubs in the grass and would like to suggest that we find turkey hunters to participate in the fall turkey hunt and cull the resident turkeys.

The field was utilized more this year than years past and the practice of sending an email to the club email list proved to be ineffective way I'm letting people know that somebody was at the field.
